

Fields of art: Farmer carves giant poppy maze into crop to mark ANZAC centenary... a year after creating a Tasmanian tiger image

- Back by popular demand, a farmer has carved a poppy-shaped maze
- Inspired by ANZAC Day, the owners wanted to share something special
- Farmer Rohan Clark used a GPS and a ride-on mower to carve the shape
- His wife Anna said she hopes the maze will attract tourists outside of TAS
- More than 2000 visitors explored the Tasmanian Tiger maze last year
- UK crop maze designer Mazescapes has designed the shape for the couple
- The Poppy Crop Maze will be open on weekends from February 21

By Cindy Tran for Daily Mail Australia

Published: 30 January 2015

After stunning the locals with a giant Tasmanian Tiger maze last year, a farmer has taken to the fields again to create a shape of a poppy on the sorghum crop.

More than 2000 visitors explored and unravelled the mystery of the five hectare plantation of the thylacine maze in a Hagley farm paddock in Northern Tasmania.

Back by popular demand, owners of the Rupertswood Farm Anna and Rowan Clark wanted something special for everyone to commemorate ahead of ANZAC Day this year.

Back by popular demand, owners Rowan and Anna Clark have created a poppy-shaped maze for ANZAC Day

'The last service inspired me to do something that would mark a big year for Gallipoli and to reflect on all the people who fought in the First World War,' Mrs Clarke told Daily Mail Australia.

Daily Mail
AUSTRALIA

<https://www.dailymail.co.uk/news/article-2932612/Farmer-carves-giant-crop-maze-shape-poppy-mark-ANZAC-centenary-year-creating-Tasmanian-tiger-field.html>